SAFE ENVIRONMENT/ANTI-HARASSMENT POLICY

The Philosophy of Education Society is committed to providing a welcoming conference experience for everyone. We recognize a shared responsibility to create and sustain a positive environment for the benefit of all, and will not tolerate harassment of conference participants in any form.

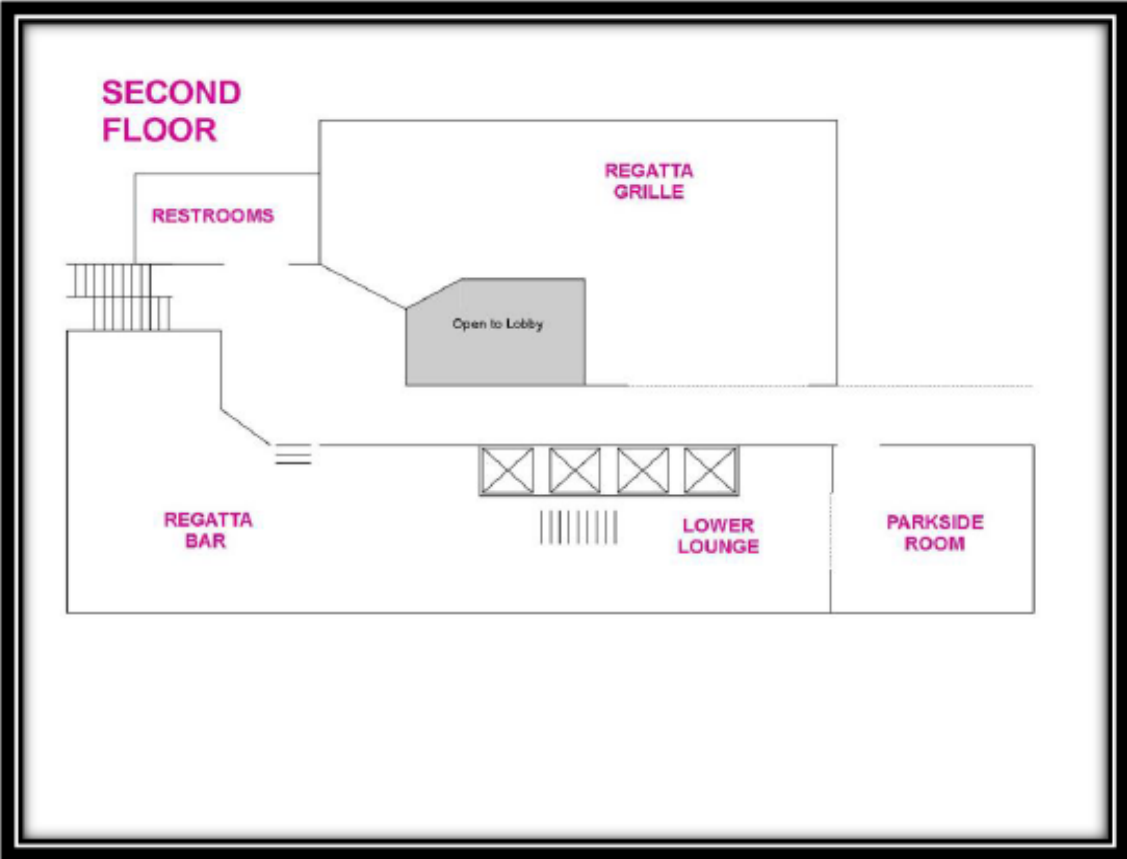

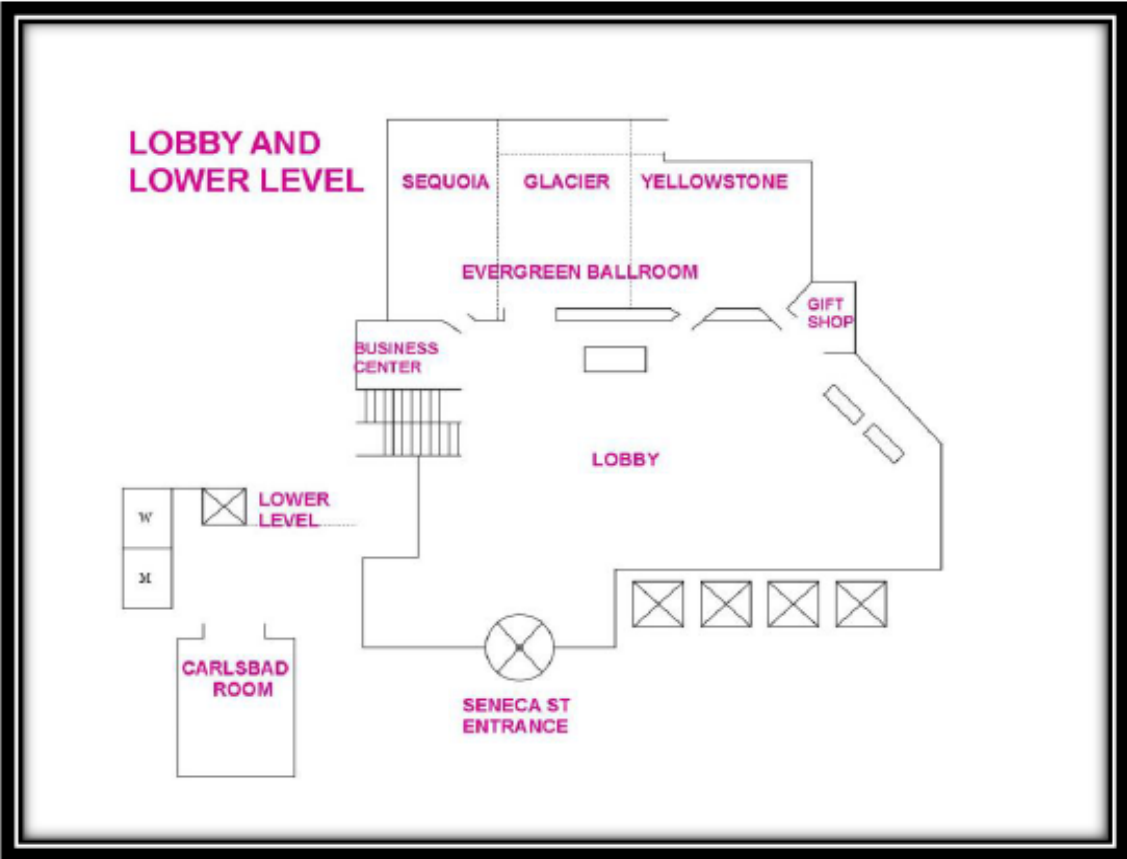

We define harassment as single or repeated instances of unwanted behavior that functions as a form of gender, sexual, racial, or ability policing, and that sustains institutional and cultural norms of dominance and privilege. Harassment includes, but is not limited to:

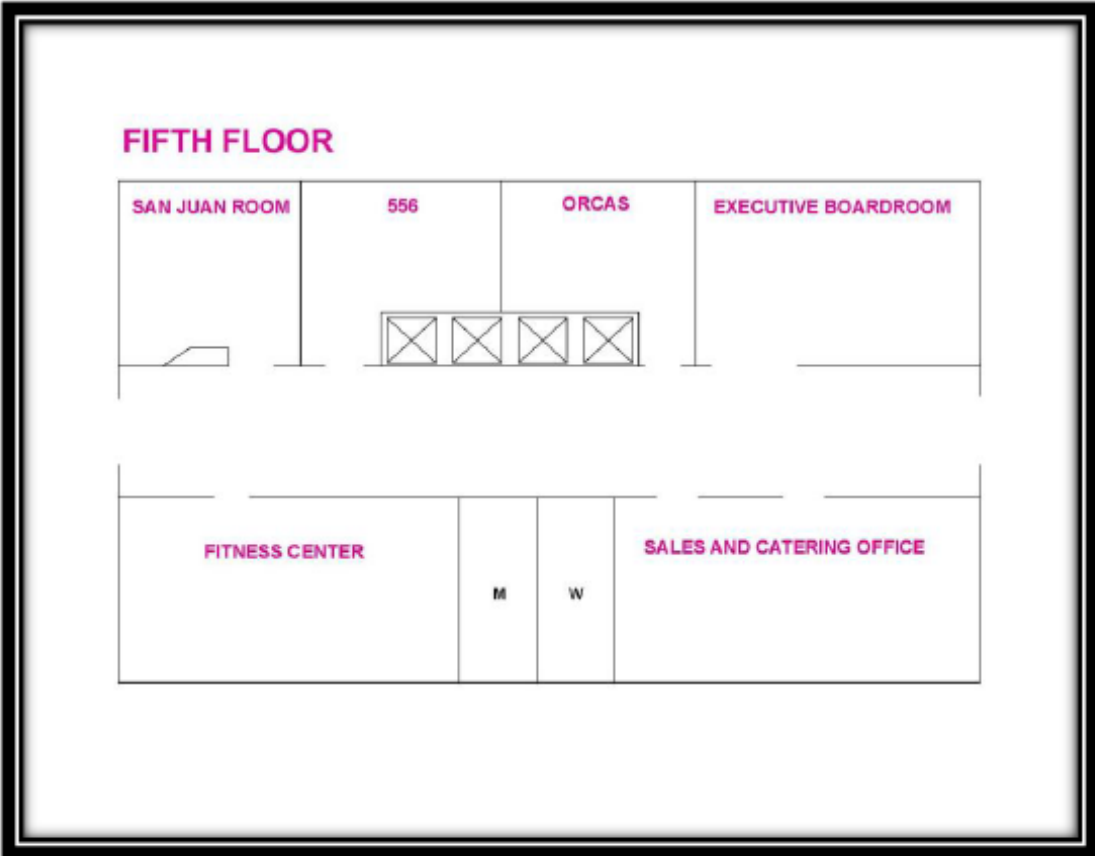

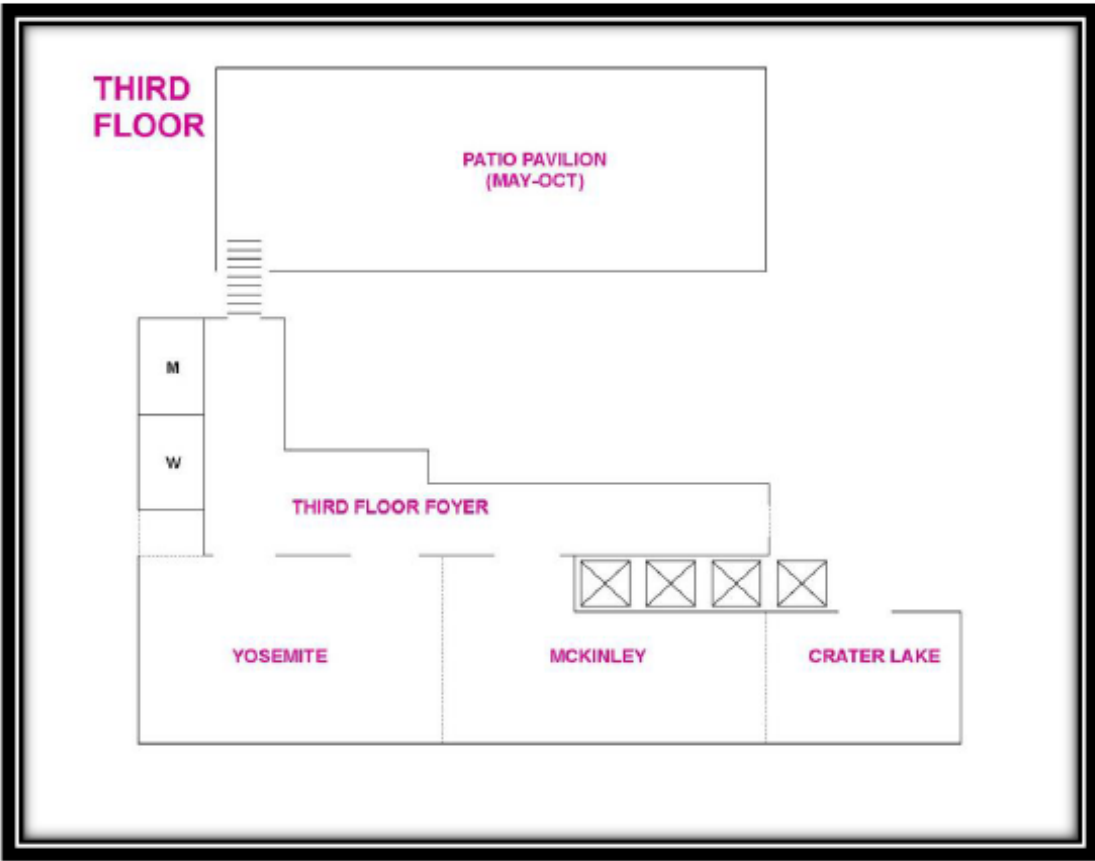

- Demeaning, intimidating, or other verbal comments and gestures that reinforce social structures of domination related to gender, gender identity and expression, sexual orientation, disability, physical appearance, body size, race, age, religion;
- Deliberate intimidation, stalking, or following;
- Inappropriate physical contact;
- Unsolicited sexual attention;
- Advocating for, or encouraging, any of the above behavior.

Both within sessions and more informally, philosophy of education requires a free exchange of information, ideas, beliefs and opinions in diverse forms, and it may well include discussion of controversial topics and unpopular points of view. However, such freedom of exchange and expression cannot exist without an equally vigorous commitment to recognition of and respect for the freedoms of others, and concern for the well-being of every conference participant. Scholarly exchange requires active concern and respect for others, including their ability to participate meaningfully in the exchange of information, ideas, beliefs and opinions. We recognize a shared responsibility to create and sustain a positive environment for the benefit of all, and will not tolerate, for example, sustained disruption of talks or other events, deliberate intimidation during sessions and other venues, or other forms of comments and gestures that reinforce social structures of domination.

While all forms of harassment are unwelcomed by the recipient, some forms are not recognized as harassment by the perpetrator. Harassment can be unintended and not malicious. Moreover, when one person has formal or informal power over the other, it may be difficult to ascertain what is unwanted. An individual might tolerate unwanted behavior if there are power imbalances between the individuals involved, but tolerance is not consent. It is every member's responsibility to be vigilant about how their behavior affects the experiences of others.

Participants asked to stop any harassing behavior are expected to comply immediately. If a participant continues to engage in harassing behavior, the Executive Board retains the right to take actions to keep the event a welcoming and respectful environment.
